North Platte NRD Will Begin Flow Meter Readings October 2nd

The North Platte Natural Resources District would like to remind producers that the water year ends on September 30, 2017. Employees of the NRD will begin reading flow meters October 2, 2017 and continuing through the middle of November. In the overappropriated portion of the District, all regulated wells, including irrigation, livestock and aquaculture wells, will be read. In the Fully Appropriated portion of the District, the irrigation wells with flow meters will also be read. Flow meters that are on the NRD maintenance schedule and are due for maintenance will be serviced at the time of reading. The NRD vehicles are clearly marked with our name. It may be necessary to enter some properties more than once in the event an additional reading may be needed.

Staff will calculate the water pumped for the past water year and a report will be issued as soon as staff can process the information. The staff will be available to answer questions individually after the reports are mailed. Contact NRD staff at (308) 632-2749 if you have questions or concerns.
