NPNRD Extends Ground Water Irrigation Well Sampling Cost-Share Through End of 2026 Water Year

The North Platte Natural Resources District (NPNRD) extended the Irrigation Well Water Sample Cost-Share Program through the remainder of the 2026 Water Year, which ends September 30, 2026.

Landowners and operators may submit irrigation well water samples to the NPNRD office for $10.00 per sample through September 30 as part of the District's cost-share program.

Cost-share assistance is available for each sample. Samples must be taken from either the irrigation well or the final point of distribution. If collected from the final point of distribution, the sample must include the required georeferenced location and the registration numbers for each well supplying that distribution point.

To participate in the cost-share program, samples must be submitted to the NPNRD office by September 30, 2026. Producers who choose to submit samples directly to a laboratory rather than through the NPNRD must ensure that their water sample results are submitted to the District by December 31, 2026, to meet reporting requirements.

Participants are encouraged to follow NPNRD's recommended sampling guidelines to help ensure accurate results. Producers with questions about proper sampling procedures should contact the NPNRD office before collecting or submitting a sample.

For more information about the Irrigation Well Water Sample Cost-Share Program or proper sampling procedures, contact the North Platte Natural Resources District at (308) 632-2749 and ask to speak with Lynn, Keelie, or Craig.
